

AMERICA'S ESSENTIAL HOSPITALS

Nabil Chehade, MD, MSBS

Senior Vice President and Chief Population Health Officer
The MetroHealth System

Chehade is senior vice president and chief population health officer at The MetroHealth System, in Cleveland. He chairs the MetroHealth Care Partner Governing Board, one of the nation's top-performing Medicare Shared Savings Programs.

Chehade leads and manages short and long-term strategic planning in MetroHealth's efforts to transform its clinical and operational approach to a population health care model. A practicing board-certified urologist, he is passionate about creating high quality care at an affordable price.

Chehade came to MetroHealth in 2016 from HealthSpan Physicians and the Ohio Permanente Medical Group, where he served as chief executive officer and market president since 2013.

He received his medical degree and completed a residency in urology at the Medical College of Ohio in Toledo. Chehade also received a master's degree in biomedical studies with a major in pathology from Toledo and completed the Advanced Management Program at Harvard Business School.
